THE BUYING MOMENT

What's the best project tool for a small creative team?

✳ A useful answer starts with their needs.
A relevant brand starts there, too.

Explore the question.
Find your angle. Shape your message.

A NEW CONSIDERATION MOMENT

The shortlist starts with a question.

A keyword tells you what someone searched. A conversation can reveal what they need.

01 / CONTEXT

What are they solving?

Go beyond a broad category to the job, constraints, and tradeoffs.

02 / RELEVANCE

Why should you fit?

Translate your product's value into an angle that matches the need.

03 / PREPARATION

Where do you start?

Connect customer questions, competitive context, and creative ideas.

BUILT AROUND YOUR GROWTH WORK

For teams ready to explore what's next.

01

Founders

Find a clear product angle before building a campaign.

02

Marketing teams

Bring customer questions into your creative brief.

03

Intended customer segments. These are proposed uses, not customer testimonials.

ONE CONNECTED WORKSPACE

From buying intent to a better brief.

GPTAd is being built to bring research and creative exploration into the same workspace.

A CLEAR PLACE TO BEGIN

One product.
A more relevant story.

01 / BRIEF

Start with your product

Describe the offer, audience, and problem you solve.

02 / QUESTIONS

Explore buying intent

Map what customers might ask as they compare options.

03 / ANGLES

Choose your message

Connect the customer's need with a specific product benefit.

04 / CONCEPTS

Shape the creative

Develop ad concepts to review and discuss with your team.

Example brief: a project workspace for creative teams who want less admin.

UNDERSTAND THE QUESTION

Meet the need behind the prompt.

CUSTOMER QUESTION	BUYING STAGE	MESSAGE OPPORTUNITY
“A simpler alternative to spreadsheets?”	Exploring	Show a simpler way to organize work.
“Best project tool for creative teams?”	Comparing	Lead with creative collaboration.
“What works for a five-person team?”	Deciding	Make the small-team fit concrete.

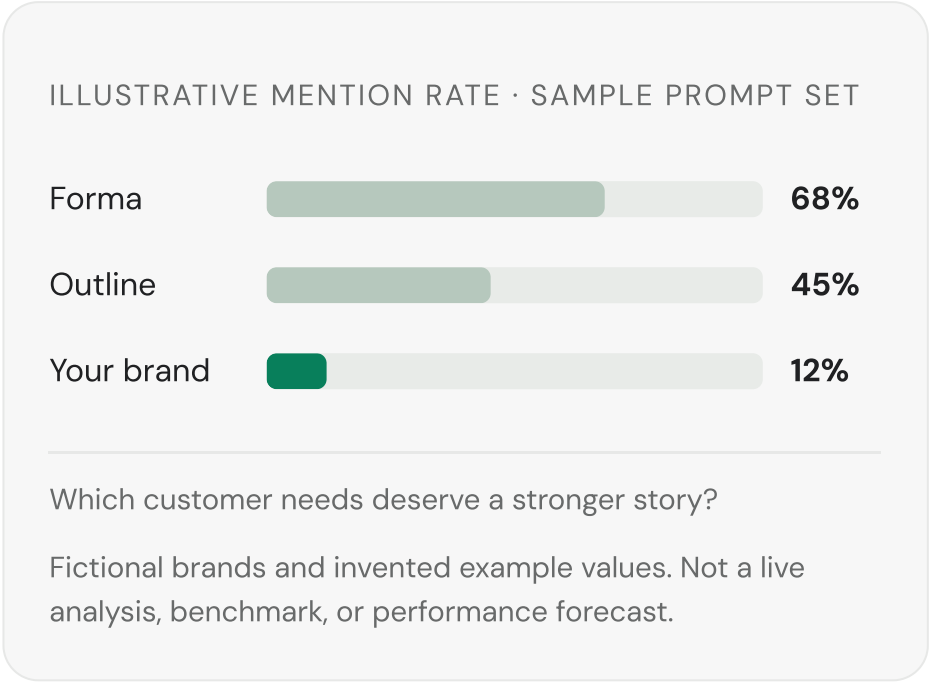

Use the question to sharpen the brief.

Illustrative prompts and intent categories. These are examples, not measured customer demand.

PUT YOUR CATEGORY IN CONTEXT

Find the conversations you could be missing.

Explore how brands appear across a prompt set, then use the gaps to guide further research.

FIND YOUR MESSAGE BEFORE YOU SPEND

One brief.
Two ways to connect.

ANGLE A · CREATIVE FREEDOM
